Parading for Seniors

Senior citizen center staff and volunteers bring good cheer to seniors sheltering-in-place

BY CASSANDRA FAVRE
STAFF WRITER

The Hancock County Senior Citizens Center has been closed since March 16 due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

In an effort to encourage the seniors to shelter-in-place and ensure they still have weekly meals, senior center staff and members of the Hancock County RSVP have been cooking and delivering meals to more than 40 seniors every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday.

"We want them to continue to shelter-in-place," Senior Center Director Arlene Johnson said. "We don't want them in public right now."

When asked why the staff decided to continue the meal service, Johnson responded, "nutrition is very important and because we love them."

"We have been staying in constant contact with them and talking to them on the phone every day," she added. "It's the little things that make a difference. My staff has been doing an awesome job. Mel Raboteau and Linda Pitts have also been volunteering."

Last week, the staff and volunteers paraded through the streets of Hancock County with signs stating that the seniors are missed and loved.

Raychelle Conrad of Diamondhead said she enjoys going to the center.

"I love being around people and I can eat breakfast and lunch," she said. "It's a good center. Arlene runs it well. Everyone misses it and we can't wait to get back."

Conrad said she lives near a walking track and

Gov. Tate Reeves issues "Safer-At-Home" order; allows for some non-essential businesses to reopen

BY CASSANDRA FAVRE
STAFF WRITER

Gov. Tate Reeves on Friday signed Executive Order 1477 "Safer-At-Home," which will take effect on Monday, April 27 at 8 a.m. and last until Monday, May 11 at 8 a.m.

Reeves announced the new order during a Facebook live event, which can be viewed on Reeves Facebook page. The "Shelter-In-Place" Executive Order 1473 issued on April 17 ended on Monday, April 27.

"This disease (COVID-19) has not hit every American fairly," Reeves said. "And the economic damage has not hit every American fairly. Wall Street and Hollywood will be fine. Mississippi small businesses and workers are not. That's who has been asked to shoulder the country's burden. It's not fair, and it's not right. We are starting to re-open our economy. It's not a light switch that only goes on and off. It's a dimmer. We can take measured steps to make life better."

In the order, Reeves outlined the guidelines of "Safer-At-Home" to continue "flattening the curve."

Those include:

- Mississippians are encouraged to stay at home unless they need to leave for essential activities or essential travel, such as caring for someone in the vulnerable population, getting food or necessary supplies and going to work.
- A 1 1

those in the vulnerable population are instructed to continue sheltering tance from other people.

Conrad said it’s been a “really good thing” to have food delivered to her home.

“It’s wonderful and the food is delicious,” she said. “It really helps. It’s hard to get out to the store and I don’t have anyone to bring anything to me. I think we took the center for granted and I don’t think we will take the center for granted anymore.”

Last Friday, Louann Beu received a phone call from Johnson who told her to expect a “package,” which turned out to be a parade of center staff, volunteers, and members of the Hancock County Sheriff’s Office and Diamondhead Fire Department.

“I am so blessed,” she said. “I couldn’t ask for anything better. It was fantastic and I was shocked. I feel blessed to be a senior and be a part of the senior center and to have the staff and volunteers take all their time during this crisis to deliver to seniors. I thoroughly appreciate it.”

Gloria Traub said her pantry is “bulging at the seams and my freezer is full,” thanks to the senior center staff.

What she said she misses most is her center “family.”

“We are a family,” she said. “Everyone knows so much about each other. We even know each other’s pets’ names.”

Traub said that Johnson treats every senior as an “individual.”

“She knows what our needs are and pays attention to those,” Traub said.

She said that she misses the center’s activities the most. Traub is a member of the “quilting crew.”

“We have a sweet fellowship every morning,” she said. “We love one another and really care. The center is well-managed by Arlene and runs very smoothly. We are fortunate to be part of a good system.”

Traub said that last week’s parade was a welcome surprise.

“It was so good to see some of the staff,” she said. “We really are a family and miss one another. It took ingenuity to plan that. We know that we are loved.”

Carole Crenshaw is also a member of the quilting crew and has continued working on her quilt during the shelter-in-place.

“A stitch here, a stitch there breaks up the monotony,” she said.

Crenshaw said that, “it may sound strange,” but sheltering-in-place doesn’t “bother for one simple reason — this too shall pass, one day at a time.”

After Hurricane Katrina, Crenshaw said, someone asked her how she could be so upbeat.

“I could not prevent that and couldn’t do anything about it,” she said. “I can’t prevent this either, but I can do what I can not to get it. I didn’t cause it, I can’t stop it, so why get depressed about it?”

During the past couple of months, Crenshaw said, her neighbors wave and greet each other and she also keeps in touch with her friends via phone and text messaging.

She said that last week’s parade was a surprise and a blessing. When the parade arrived, she started dancing and singing “We are Family.” “That’s how I feel,” she said. “That’s how I look at it. Why be whining and moaning? This too shall pass. Keep the faith in whatever you believe in. Keep your faith strong.”

At this time, Johnson said, there are no plans to reopen the center just yet.

“I don’t want to come back prematurely and I don’t want them exposed,” she said.

Now more than 6,300 COVID-19 cases in state, 61 in Hancock County

BY GEOFF BELCHER
GENERAL MANAGER

The Mississippi State Department of Health (MSDH) on Tuesday reported 248 new cases of COVID-19 in the state — including one new case in Hancock County — and 10 new deaths statewide.

“Forty-two of these new cases were among residents in long-term care facilities,” according to Thursday’s statement. “The number of Mississippians currently hospitalized with confirmed COVID-19 infection has risen to 429. Mississippi’s total COVID-19 cases since March 11 now stands at 6,342, with 239 deaths.”

The new case reported in Hancock County on Thursday increases the number of infections here to 61, with a total of five deaths and seven people with the virus in long-term care facilities.

There were seven new cases reported in Harrison County on Tuesday, bringing the total to 166 cases with six deaths and one person infected in a long-term care facility.

In Pearl River County, one new case and one new death were reported Tuesday, bringing the to-als to 154 people with the virus, 15 dead, with 30 people in long-term care facilities infected.

As of 6 p.m. on Monday, the MSDH Public Health Laboratory had tested 11,978 Mississippi residents for COVID-19 and other providers around the state had tested 52,434, for a total of 64,412.

Currently, there are approximately 2.97 million people living in the state of Mississippi. Hancock County’s population, according to the last available data, is 47,632.

State health officials say accurate data on the number of people who have recovered from COVID-19 is not yet available.

“Anyone with symptoms of fever, severe cough or severe chest pains — especially those who are older or in poor health — should make arrangements for testing with their doctor or one of the many healthcare providers now performing testing,” according to MSDH. “Healthcare providers can assess your health history and symptoms, and perform testing for COVID-19 as needed. MSDH is also helping conduct free drive-up testing sites in many parts of the state. Always call ahead to the testing provider for instructions on safely being examined before you visit for your test.”

There are now COVID-19 testing sites open in Hancock County.

Relay for Life of Hancock County to host a Luminaria Drive-by Celebration

BY CASSANDRA FAVRE

And once the storm is over, you won’t remember how you made it through, how you managed to survive. You won’t even be sure, in fact, whether the storm is really over. But one thing is certain. When you come out of the storm, you won’t be the same person who walked in.” — Haruki Murakami.

Due to the current COVID-19 pandemic, Relay for Life of Hancock County had to cancel its annual Relay Day of Hope earlier this month.

Since the American Cancer Society also cancelled all in-person events through June, Relay Mississippi is hosting a virtual relay event on Friday, May 1 and one of the events is a Luminaria Drive-by Celebration.

According to the ACS’ website, “Luminarias honor every life touched by cancer. You can dedicate them to a loved one lost, someone currently battling, or anyone who’s overcome it. When you attend a Relay event, you’ll see the Luminarias decorated with names and sometimes messages to the people they’re dedicated to. After dark, Relay participants share an emotional moment when each Luminaria is lit in remembrance of a life touched by cancer.”

Beginning at 6 p.m. on

Misfits Street Krewzers host parade for local nursing homes; more than 100 classic cars

Photos by Cassandra Favre | Sea Coast Echo

The Misfits Street Krewzers President Terry Poore on Saturday organized a parade of classic cars to ride by local nursing homes. More than 100 classic cars from car clubs all over South Mississippi answered the call. In addition to this parade at Dunbar Village in Bay St. Louis, the group also paraded at Memorial Woodland Village in Diamondhead and Dixie White House Nursing Home in Pass Christian. Due to the current COVID-19 restrictions in place, the elders are unable to receive visitors, but were able to enjoy the parade of classic cars from a distance.

Merchants aim to ‘ease into’ reopening after COVID-19 shutdown

BY GEOFF BELCHER
GENERAL MANAGER

Old Town Bay St. Louis merchants are approaching the transition from the COVID-19 “shelter at home” plan to “safer at home” — and the impending reopening of Hancock County’s beaches this Saturday — with a healthy mix of hard work, mild anxiety and cautious optimism.

“We’re damned if we do and damned if we don’t,” Christy Barnes said Tuesday. “I’m excited and ready to get to work, but I’m scared to death.”

She and husband Melvin “Cuz” Barnes own Cuz’s Old Town Oyster Bar & Grill on Beach Boulevard.

Although they have continued to offer take-out and curbside service, Christy Barnes said, the coronavirus and resulting safety measures have taken a heavy toll on their business.

“We’ve been closed Mondays and Tuesdays, but starting Wednesday, we have to go back to normal just to survive,” she said. “We will be open every day, but we will obey the law. We will do curbside and take-out only, for now. We have masks, we have gloves, we have sanitizers. We just have to get the people to do what they need to do.”

Which might be easier said than done.

The city of Bay St. Louis ordered Cuz’s and all the other beach-front restaurants closed this past Friday evening because the crowd swelled and many people seemed to ignore social distancing rules.

“On Friday night, it got a little crowded and we got shut down at seven o’clock,” Barnes said, “but Saturday and Sunday, there wasn’t a police officer in sight. We shut down early on Sunday just because of the protection of the staff and ourselves and our customers. This is a hard thing. It’s truly a family business — my kids and my sons-in-law, they all work for me. I worry about them, and I don’t want our customers getting sick, either.”

Barnes said she hopes to be able to get the courtyard dining area back up around May 14, but with at most 50 percent capacity, in order to keep the patrons a safe distance from each other.

“It’s a sad situation,” she said. “We get phone calls all day long, ‘When are you opening back up?’ They just want to be part of Cuz’s again, the whole Old Town vibe.”

MOVING AHEAD. CAUTIOUSLY.

Chef Nancy Moynan, who owns Lulu’s on Main Street, echoes some of Barnes’ concerns, and also believes it’s best to be cautious as the community transitions back to some semblance of “normal.”

Like Cuz’s, Lulu’s has offered take-out service during limited ment of Health, which include limits groups to 10 or less and maintaining a social distance of six feet.

The restroom facilities, piers, pavilions, and volleyball nets will remain closed to the public.

Board members said that both Bay St. Louis Mayor Mike Favre and Waveland Mayor Mike Smith agree with the board’s decision to reopen the beaches.

“This is something, if we have to go back and redo it, we’ll do it again,” Board President Scotty Adam said. “As long as people follow the guidelines, and they were prior to the beaches being closed. But hopefully people will at some point take some of the responsibility to do the right thing.”

The county’s public community centers, the sports complex, county-owned fields, parks, arena, and other open areas will remain closed until May 11 in compliance with Gov. Tate Reeves’ “Safer-At-Home” Executive Order No. 1477, this includes McLeod Park.

However, the McLeod Park boat launch is open and only to be used for “ingress and egress to and from the water. Gatherings and loitering at the boat launch are prohibited, and all persons shall adhere to all social distancing requirements,” the order states.

The next regular board meeting is scheduled for Monday, May 4 at 9 a.m. The meetings are live streamed on the county’s website at www.hancockcounty.ms.gov.

These contracts are urgently needed given the industry’s logistical challenges. Suppliers are spread out across the country, and various regions are being affected differently by COVID-19. This is making it nearly impossible for industry partners to keep in step with each other and meet deadlines. Suppliers need flexibility in the pace of production, which can be achieved by awarding more contracts up-front. This would allow them to keep employees on the payroll during any temporary shutdowns and guarantee they have work to come back to when their local situation improves.

I am thankful that many Mississippi businesses have been able to weather this crisis by letting employees work from home. The modern miracle of telework has been a blessing to many.

Unfortunately this option is not available to entire sectors of our economy, including those who build our military’s planes, helicopters, vehicles, and ships.

I am determined to make sure these workers, and our military supply chain overall, do not become casualties of the coronavirus.

He was also involved in establishing several restaurants and bars in the French Quarter and Metairie. He participated in and supported many civic and cultural organizations. He was member of several Mardi Gras organizations and was a founding member of Bacchus.

Upon retirement he moved to Pass Christian Isles Mississippi and enjoyed traveling on his motor home and cruising on his motor yacht Stormy Petrel. He lived on his boat for several years in Key West, Florida. On returning to Pass Christian, he met and married the love of his life, Prima Thomas Plauché.

They enjoyed traveling and entertaining at their bayou home, Joie d’ivre surrounded by their children, grandchildren and many friends. In partnership with his children, he opened the Cafe Reef in Waveland, Mississippi and the River Reef Restaurant, now operating as the Jourdan River Steamer in Kiln, Mississippi. He served on the Mississippi Library Commission Board of Commissioners; the Board of the South Mississippi Humane Society; the Board of the Mississippi Gulf Coast Restaurant and Beverage Association; the West Harrison County Vo-Tec School; the Hancock County Cancer Society, and the Harrison County Republican Executive Committee. He was active in the Mississippi Republican Party and served as State Chairman of the Capitol Foundation. He was President of the Henderson Point/Pass Christian Isles Homeowners Association and a member of the Pass Christian Yacht Club. He served on the Henderson Point/Pass Christians Isles Hurricane Katrina Recovery Steering Committee.

He is survived by his wife Prima and his children Henry (Hank) Hester Plauché III, Pass Christian, Mississippi, Deborah Lillian Plauché, Fairhope, Alabama, and Valerie Leigh Plauché, New Orleans, Louisiana, his step-son Charles Joseph Wusnack, New Orleans, Louisiana and his beloved grandchildren Henry Hester Plauché IV, Zachary Joseph Plauché, Cairo Adele Plauché, Lelia Zev Plauché, and Made-line Monet Plauché.

In addition to his parents, he was preceded in death by his paternal grandparents Leda Hincks and Henry Ovid Plauché, maternal grandparents Lillian Snell and Alfred S Tharp and his brother Paul Stephen Plauché.

The family suggests memorials be made to the Library Foundation of Hancock County, 312 Hwy 90 Bay St. Louis 39520/on-line, or to an animal welfare organization of your choice. A celebration of his life by his family and many friends will be held at a future date.

hours during the “shut down,” offering a limited menu that includes some of her customer’s favorites, like roast beef or catfish po-boys, gyros and the “Lululetta.” Like everybody else, she wants things to go back to normal, but in an orderly fashion.

“I’m fine with doing take-out,” she said Tuesday, “but Friday night got a little out of hand with the crowd sized. Beach Boulevard looked like you were driving down Bourbon Street In the middle of Mardi Gras.”

The key to safety and success, she said, is “trying to be respectful of people wanting to get out and also balancing that with what is the safe way to do that. ... I’m thrilled that the beaches are going to be open. I think that’s a good thing, especially this time of year. People gravitate towards beaches anyway, especially during these times, and it will give people and their immediate families something to do — come get some take-out and have a picnic on the beach! But I do get concerned when there’s 50 or 60 neighborhoods gathered on the beach under one umbrella. I think social distancing is going to be the new way of life for us for awhile.

“Take-out is working. I’ve been quite happy to do it. I’m glad to have something to do. It gives me some place to go and it gives me the opportunity to continue to hone my skills and feel that I’m contributing to something that makes people happy, for whatever little break out of their day that is, to come get something to eat.”

Moynan believes it’s best to “ease into” re-opening.

“The bottom line is, if we weren’t doing what we’re doing (social distancing), we would be in a horrible situation, so let’s keep doing it to the best of our ability,” she said.

However, Moynan worries about some of the gift shops and other “non-essential” businesses that haven’t been able to reach their customers during much of the “shelter in place” period.

“Retail stores — that’s what makes Old Town workable,” she said. “It’s not just restaurants and bars. A lot of them are finding a good median — (their customers) look online, then come to the brick-and-mortar store and try it on and buy it, and don’t linger too long. A lot of them have found that ‘online’ and ‘in-store’ meld well together.”

SUPPORTING LOCAL BUSINESS, AND STAYING SAFE

“We have been doing curbside and delivery in the immediate area,” JoAnn Saucier, manager of the Shops of Century Hall — and owner of “The Porch” gift shop inside — said Tuesday. “It’s been a little slow for us.”

The Shops of Century Hall — located at 112 S. Second St. in Bay St. Louis — includes several different stores offering a wide variety of gifts, art, jewelry, antiques and more.

Saucier said all the merchants have been working together to “reorganize” in order to open the Shops back up completely, in as safe a manner as possible.

“We’ve been busy retooling the whole place here,” she said. “We’ve been really busy trying to get things together so we can reopen safely for our customers and for ourselves, having hand sanitizer stations available for the customers and things like that. It’s getting there. We’re hoping to possibly do a soft opening somewhere around May 8 and then back to full speed somewhere around the 14th.”

The shops have all done a mix of online and Facebook marketing, then meeting the customers outside for sales, she said.

Like Moynan, Saucier wants the beaches to open and for folks to pour back into Old Town, but safely.

“Come see us, please!” She said. “We love our visitors, but there are rules and regulations we all have to follow. We’re just trying to make everything as safe for everybody as possible.”

NOT DOING WHAT YOU KNOW CAN BE DONE! BY GARY ANDREWS

There is an old saying in the business world that goes like this; “There is nothing more embarrassing than watching your boss do something that you told him couldn’t be done.”

I learned at an early age never to question the directions of a superior because they have been at one time, where you are now. I have also been in a situation where I have given directions and later be told what I asked to be done, couldn’t be done. I also have learned that no one should ask anyone to do anything unless they have completed the task at hand or be willing to handle the situation themselves.

Growing up in a small town allowed me the opportunity of knowing many people. Our school system wasn’t so big that we didn’t know most people or know about most of the students. Our churches were of a good size that all who participated knew each other and helped one another in and through various projects.

As I have grown older and moved on to larger cities and communities I have found it increasingly difficult to know your neighbors and in some instances, know all of your co-workers. I have never worked with a company, a mill, or an industry where thousands of people were employed because it would probably be an impossible task to know everyone or work with everyone.

Through my younger days and into my adulthood, I have been thoroughly blessed to work for companies that were not extremely large. This has allowed me to know most of the people and get to know them as friends and neighbors. The largest problem that bothered me was that I was on the shy, timid side and afraid of what someone would think of me if I tried something and got it wrong. There were many occasions in school when I knew the correct answer to questions and would not speak up because I feared I would be mistaken and be laughed at or judged by my peers as being unintelligent.

This fear followed me into my days of college and into the Air Force. However, once I went to basic training I realized that I wasn’t the only one that felt this way and when my training instructor told me to do something I had no choice than to do what I was told.

There was no shying away from this task and there was no telling him that this couldn’t be accomplished.

All of my life I have gone to church and I know the Lord has guided me in everything that I have done. I have no regrets. It wasn’t until later in life that I adopted Philippians 4:13 as my favorite Bible verse and allowed it to be first and foremost in my life; “I can do all things through Christ, who strengthens me.” From that day forward I haven’t been afraid of speaking up and stepping up to a task, whether I was wrong or right.

Many of us face situations every day that we know we can handle, but we are too timid to step up or speak up. If our life is based on Christ there should be nothing holding us back because He will lead us and guide us during our daily walk. He is to be first and foremost in our life and He will never let us down.

When we seem to think we have trouble is when we have taken our eyes off of Jesus. When this happens we need to get on our knees and pray for repentance, then get into His Word for guidance.

said that “you definitely have to fight.” “You have to strive to be the survivor,” she said. “I had to fight for my family. Having faith is what got me through. It hasn’t been easy, but you have to do it when you hear those words.” Batchelor said that the American Cancer Society also helped her find temporary housing when she had to stay in Texas for two months for treatment. LaWanda Jones, ACS Community Development Manager, said that Relay for Life has impacted her life since she was a teenager. “I learned about kinship with a team, supporting others’ journeys, and growing the awareness of a disease that doesn’t discriminate,” Jones said. “As an ACS employee and volunteer, I am thankful for relationships I have developed through Relay for Life. We will continue to fight until we have a world without cancer!”

Relay for Life of Hancock County co-chair Bernie Cullen said she started volunteering with ACS in the early 1980s.

“I believe in the power of one,” she said. “I love this quote from Bryce Courtenay, ‘When man can be made to hope, they can be made to win.’ I believe each one of us plays an integral part in the fight against all cancers. Relay for Life campaigns deliver hope while we work on cures.”

The Luminaria Drive-by Celebration is scheduled from 6 to 7:30 p.m. starting at the 300 block of Coleman Avenue in Waveland.

This week, the Hancock County Board of Supervisors voted to continue the beach closure until May 4 at noon. As previously ordered by the board, the parking lots and parking bays adjacent to the beach will also remain closed, except to those utilizing the walking trail along the beach. According to the order, there will be “no loitering at the parking lot, bays, or walking trail is allowed.”

The board also extended the closures of public community centers, the sports complex, county-owned fields and parks, public bathrooms, piers, arena, and other open areas until May 4 at noon.

Meet Riley. He was once a semi-feral stray who was cared for by a very kind lady. Over time, her patience and affection won him over, and he became quite the sweet boy. Riley became very comfortable indoors, learned to use a litter box, and loved nothing more than curling up with his human friend, and receiving lots of petting and caressing. However, his friend found herself facing unfortunate circumstances not within her control, and Riley came to us, last month, in search of his forever family. Riley has been a model citizen in our cat adoption room, making friends with the other kitties, and greeting visitors with a head nod and soft meows for attention. He could easily join a home with other "chill" cats. This 3 year old, long haired boy is good with children, too. We prefer to see him be an inside only pet, or at least be supervised whenever outdoors, (once he has adjusted to his new home and family, of course). Handsome Riley would be a wonderful companion for anyone seeking a calm natured feline friend. He is a favorite of our cat techs and volunteers. If you are interested in Riley, please message the shelter on our Facebook page, Hancock County Animal Shelter MS, to arrange a meet-n-greet by appointment, as the shelter is currently closed. Riley would be the perfect quarantine buddy, and a wonderful friend for life. Please also visit our Facebook page to see more pictures of Riley and of the many other wonderful, adoptable fur babies looking for their forever homes.

Willis comes home to coach Bay High Tigers

STAFF WRITER

Derrick Willis was officially hired on Monday, April 13th to lead the Bay High Tigers basketball team following the resignation of Randy McCrory who had led the Tigers for the last eight seasons. Willis, a 2005 graduate of Saint Stanislaus and prepped under Jay Ladner, spent the past two seasons leading the Hancock Hawks in Kiln. Willis commented, “I absolutely loved coaching at Hancock. It is a very desirable location being in Class 6A and on the Coast. However, I felt this was a good move for me coming to Bay High. I am coming back to my hometown, coaching in the division that I played in, and getting the opportunity to coach with family. The staff at Hancock is extremely loyal, the administration was outstanding to work for and the players’ work ethic was extremely strong. But, in the end, this was coming home for me and an opportunity that I did not want to go by.”

During his two seasons at Hancock, Willis had the Hawks in positions to win key games and his squads were exciting to watch. Over two seasons, Willis turned in a record of 19-42 while playing in a gauntlet of a division with the likes of Gulfport and Harrison Central.

He inherits a Bay High squad that averaged 18 wins a year under McCrory and was a mainstay in the postseason over the last decade.

Willis added, “The first thing we will have to do once we get past this pandemic and the effects surrounding it is we will have to reestablish our expectations. Teams do not graduate multiple year starters like Elijah Curry, Kyren Galloway, CJ Loftin, and Khalil Bell and get better. But, that is what we will be working hard to do. Ultimately, we want to reestablish ourselves and achieve the opportunity to get back to the state title game.”

Willis has a staff in place that includes his cousin, Dmitry Johnson, Daron Bell, and Willie Moody. Willis continued, “Once we get the all-clear to move forward, it will be fun. Coaching in 4A will be just as intense and just as talented as coaching in 6A. The staff is established and we will coach the entire program seventh through 12th grade. We are excited about getting started.”

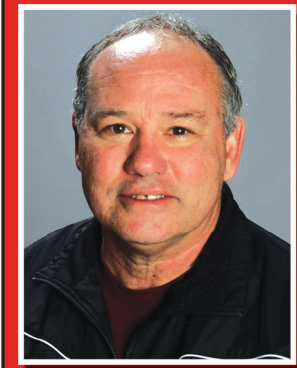

Willis graduated from SSC in 2005 after playing his entire career for Jay Ladner who is now the head men’s coach at The University of Southern Mississippi. Willis earned his bachelor’s degree in 2009 from USM and is currently enrolled in a masters degree program at USM and is slated to graduate in May 2021.

Willis’ first coaching job was at Oak Grove in 2009-10. He stayed there for three years before moving to Gulfport Central Middle School where he coached from 2013-15. He moved up to Gulfport High School under Owen Miller from 2015-18 before spending the last two seasons as a head coach at Hancock.

SSC’s Elkins earns All-State, signs with PRCC

BY JOSEPH W. GEX, II
STAFF WRITER

Saint Stanislaus senior Brandon Elkins recently was named to the Clarion Ledger All-State first team in soccer following the season.

Elkins, a two-year captain, has started for three seasons on defense for the Rock-a-chaws.

Elkins commented, “This is a tremendous honor. I remember my older brother, Andrew, being selected and that drove me to work harder to live up to those expectations. After the season we had and how our team performed, I felt that I lived up to those expectations. To be recognized for the work I put in is very humbling. I am eager to get back to work and continue my career on the soccer field at PRCC.”

Elkins, who previously signed a National Letter of Intent to play soccer at Pearl River Community College, played his entire career on defense for the Rocks. Despite playing in the back, Elkins managed to score six goals and collect seven assists during the season.

He also won two Class 4A state championships in soccer in 2018 and 2020.

Elkins continued, “I will continue playing defense at PRCC but which position has not been determined yet. I am eager to get started with their program. When I signed with them, it felt like home. They have an outstanding academic program to go along with an outstanding soccer program.”

Elkins stated that the intensity of practice under Coach Zach Villarubia and former coaches Ryan Joiner and Danny Patton helped get him ready for the next level.

Elkins ended, “I was fortunate to be able to get a full season in for my sport. With this pandemic, it has wrecked all the spring sports such as baseball and such. I feel sorry for the athletes in the spring sports all across the country that had their seasons cut short. I am looking forward to the time when we can get together as teams again and work out. I have been doing the workouts sent by the PRCC coaching staff on my own but I am eager to get together with a team. I feel my leadership on the defensive end of the field will be a strength for me but I must get better using my weaker foot more to be successful at the next level.”

Elkins has not decided on a major field of study. This past season he led the Rocks to the Division 8-4A title, Class 4A South State title, and Class 4A state title with a 19-5-1 record. He also lettered in Cross Country in the fall as the Rocks placed third in Class 4A.
